ARKANSAS MINORITY HEALTH COMMISSION ANNOUNCES A COMMUNITY HEALTH FAIR IN LITTLE ROCK

LITTLE ROCK--The Arkansas Minority Health Commission (AMHC) will host a health fair on Thursday, February 25, 2010 from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. at the State Capitol Rotunda in Little Rock.

Free health screenings for blood pressure, glucose, cholesterol, and sickle cell will be provided for legislators, staff and constituents. Vendors will be on hand to provide important health information.

“The Arkansas Minority Health Commission conducts free health screenings throughout the state,” says Itonia Trotter, executive director of the AMHC. “This is an opportunity for legislators and the public to see the critical free services and health information provided by the AMHC to disparate communities throughout the state.
